WHATEVER HAPPENED TO GERALD BOSTOCK?

St Cleve welcomes new resident, Gerald Bostock (50), who has recently purchased the £950,000 Old Rectory, Mulberry Lane, with 6 acres and a duck pond on the edge of the village. Lifelong Labour activist Mr Bostock, who lost his seat in the last election, has now retired from politics and plans to use his new-found country retreat to write memoirs and a screenplay based on the sordid tale of a chief Prime Minister's aide, caught in a off-duty moment with a colourful contortionist of Latvian descent. StCleve.com learned of these plans from conversation overheard by local hack and BBC journo, Calvin Hester at the Cinnamon Club, a Westminster Indian restaurant popular with both politicians and the press. Insider, Baron Stewart of Infield, commented that, "You shouldn't believe everything you hear at the Cinnamon. Or down any boozier, in fact."

Strange coincidence it is but, as a child, Mr Bostock entered a poetry competition and was subsequently disqualified from his win following an appearance on BBC TV where he uttered a profanity. It was also revealed that his parents had lied about his age. Instead of the eight-year-old his parents claimed him to be, he was actually nine at the time of writing the poem and ten when he won the competition. Gerald's poetry was utilised for song lyrics by none-other than Ian Anderson in the Jethro Tull album of 1972! Small world, as they say.

We wish to welcome Mr Bostock to our midst and hope that he and his family will participate in the life of the community. Overtures have already been made by Rob Widdington and Carol Freeman of the Local Conservative Association to host a Summer Barbecue Party at the Old Rectory, a venue oft-used in the past, courtesy of the previous owner, The Reverend Godfrey Pitcher who has relocated to the South-east, to be closer to Rome, according to some waggish pundits.

JETHRO TULL'S IAN ANDERSON TAAB2 THICK AS A BRICK 2

Ageing Rock Star to play "warm-up" gig at St Cleve Community Centre on Friday 13th April

Ian Anderson, the voice and flute of Jethro Tull and reclusive, seldom-seen resident of Linwell, is to bring his pop group to the village hall for a friendly warm-up concert to try out some of the new material before the start of his world tour.

Ian and the boys will demonstrate their virtuosity and entertain the anticipated sell-out crowd of some 200 locals for nearly two hours of fun-packed musical entertainment.

Tickets available now from the community centre. £10.00. £7.50 concession for the over-60s and the infirm. All proceeds to go to the Old Persons' Activity, Health and Leisure Evening fund. (OPAHLE)
